

Cosmic Illumination

THERE IS WITHIN MAN a power, a light, a fire, a cosmic link between himself and his Creator which, when allowed, will heal any manner of disease with which he may be afflicted—even a so-called incurable disease. The light is so powerful, so divinely radiant, so pure and perfect that disease melts before its penetrating rays.

This incomparable cosmic fire is within each man. There are no exceptions. It is the Christ within, our part of the Love-Wisdom Principle. It is that part of us that is so pure it knows nothing less perfect than itself. It is our protection, our guidance, our abundance, our health—our all. It is our sonship with the Creator—God.

I still had this lesson to learn when a doctor told me I had but a short time to live—that I had cancer of the stomach and bowels. The few remaining months, at most, of my life would be painful misery. I knew he would say it was hopeless. Others had said the same. The symptoms were unmistakable. I looked at him for a long time—blankly. In reply he handed me a book, The Rosicrucian Cosmo-Conception, by Max Heindel.

When I arrived home, I glanced through its pages, but I was too sick of mind and body to read it understandingly. But, grasping it in my hand, I defied the doctor's verdict. I decided to get well. How I was going about this seemingly insurmountable task I did not at the moment know. Defiantly I held the book, as if it were the saving rock to which I was obliged to cling. I tried to read it but my mind as well as my body was weak and inconstant.

Cosmo—I wondered what that meant. I looked in the dictionary and found cosmos, the same root word: the universe as a manifestation of law and order—opposite of chaos. That was exactly what I wanted. I wanted my body and mind to act in harmony. I had had enough of chaos.

It seemed as if my different organs were functioning as distinct individuals with no consideration as to their relationship to the body as a whole. And each atom of each organ was flying at a different rate of speed, indifferent to organic harmony. Everything was out of tune.

But I had decided to get well. Instinctively I knew I would have to do everything I possibly could to cooperate with the bringing forth of this health which I so longingly coveted.

I had been in constant pain for five years. If I drank water or refrained from drinking water, I was in pain. If I ate food or did not eat food, the pain continued unceasingly. I often wondered how it would seem to be relieved of this gnawing, burning agony. I tried to imagine myself free from it. In my strong moments when a passionate will seemed to have taken hold of me, I decided that in order to get well, I must, as it were, take myself veritably in the palm of my hand—rule every thought, word, and act with a will of tempered steel.

I wanted passionately to be like that cosmos—everything in my body working smoothly, evenly, easily. I always felt cold, chilly, lifeless. As I lived where sunshine abounded, I decided to soak myself in it. I found it helped me relax; even a strong tension always gave way under its influence. At first I had only five minutes of exposure to the sun with my head shaded. This was increased to a half hour.

I had been on a milk diet but decided to become a vegetarian. I ate fruits and vegetables and whole grain cereals. When I found with what ease rice is digested, I ate it with pleasure, knowing I was taxing my digestion apparatus but lightly.

For breakfast I had whole wheat wafers and raisins, or whole wheat cereal and prunes. For lunch, a baked potato and a small portion of carrots and summer squash. Instead of baked potato, I sometimes would have rice boiled in a double boiler, with perhaps spinach and string beans. It was a simple matter to vary the vegetables from day to day. For dinner, I had a plate of fruit. Perhaps a peach and a bunch of luscious purple grapes, or a bling I pursued my plan. At times my will was weak and it seemed futile to try to stand against the foe—disease. Then, with an onrush of power, my faith would return and I knew I would fight a good fight.

For three years I wrestled, thinking health, believing in health, but bound the while by diseased flesh. I continued to read the Cosmo-Conception, and attended lectures on the occult. I saw to it that all my reading material was of an inspirational nature.

As I became stronger, I walked. Only a block at first, then two or three, until finally I could walk a mile without discomfort. But in the five years, plus red apple and three walnuts.

When I returned to my body, I felt a glow, a wonderful illuminating warmth which was beyond human ecstasy. I could feel only waves of light, for all my being was whirling in a sea of light as big and great as the whole universe.

It is not my desire to lay down rules of diet. I am simply reciting what I did in a successful effort to cure a so-called incurable disease. Each individual, of course, has to work out his own program according to his particular temperament and condition. I asked repeatedly for divine guidance, not only in the matter of food, but in all that I did. God is ever ready to give us wisdom in proportion to our giving up the self.

I read The Rosicrucian Cosmo-Conception intensively. I would take a statement which appealed to me and abide with it for a week. Then another for the next week, or perhaps just a word: God, or perfection. I used it as a pattern or mould and poured my thought, my life, and my love into it.

Five minutes out of each hour I was up; I sat in a comfortable position and consciously quieted my mind with Peace...peace...peace...be still, or a similar formula.

Sometimes I was too ill to get out of bed, and my food and sun and thought regime was suspended until I was able to get up again. I pledged myself to God, and, regardless of the appearances, I clung to Him frantically. I knew His was the only path by which I could escape death. With fear and trem-these three years of my self-imposed regime, I was never free from pain. It possessed and harassed me.

In the last three years I had gained more than I realized. I was stronger both in body and mind. Fear did not besiege me with such possessiveness as formerly.

One day I was seized with an indefinable weakness. I went to bed, scarcely able to move. My husband called a trained nurse, one of my friends, to attend me. He insisted that I have a doctor, but I assured him I was only exhausted and wanted to rest. He did not press the point further. The nurse was an occult student and intuitively she knew what was taking place. She did not urge getting a doctor.

I slipped into a strange state where I could not open my mouth. I could not talk or eat. Neither could I open my eyes. Occasionally the nurse poured a teaspoonful of warm milk into my mouth. Then things started to happen. The three years' apprenticeship to God had set up a new vibration. The old was dying that the new might be born and thrive.

I moved out of my bed and traveled about, looking back amusedly at my physical temple, which appeared to be in utter darkness. When I returned to my body, I felt a glow, a wonderful illuminating warmth which was beyond human ecstasy. All my senses functioned as higher senses: the saliva ran sweet as honey in my mouth; my eyes saw no forms, no objects, only a brilliant, gorgeous white light; my ears were attuned to music more perfect than earthly symphonies. I could smell a delicate perfume—a perfume sweeter than any mundane essence, however costly. And I could touch....I could feel only waves of light, for all my being was whirling in a sea of light as big and great as the whole universe.

I lay in spiritual ecstasy. A voice, an unseen Voice, a voice as of a surgeon, said to me, "Lie very still this morning, my child. There is much work to be accomplished in the repairing of your stomach and bowels. The cancer must be routed out. You are now being made anew. Have patience."

Obediently I lay very still, I closed my eyes, It seemed for hours the etheric knife was busy with its work upon me. A great shaft of light pierced my abdomen, interpenetrating my stomach and bowels. Knives, also of light, were busily at work, backing away, breaking away, tearing away the diseased tissue, making way for reparation, regeneration, revivification of my whole being.

My back, which had been torn by pain, was pierced by rays of light. I saw them with my inner consciousness, my eyes being closed the while. This continued for a week while I lay physically quiet. No disease could endure the radiance in which I was immersed. I knew I was healed. I could see my organs. Each individual organ in my body was outlined and illuminated like a neon sign. I could see the circulation of blood in my body.

I lay in bed on Easter morning. In the stillness of my room, I glimpsed the significance of the Resurrection. I realized the role that the Resurrection had played in my individual experience. I reminisced the multitudes of times I had in the past eight years read, reviewed, and meditated upon the Resurrection. I was grateful that I had learned to let the light of God flow through me. I was thankful, too, that on this Easter day I had caught the true import of Easter: Resurrection.

My husband brought to my room an Easter lily—perfect, waxen, pure white. A friend sent me a Japanese lily, a brownish orange with darker spots.

Easter afternoon I got up and dressed and walked from room to room. My home was beautiful, more glorious than ever. I looked out of all the windows from the different rooms to view the flower garden. The lawn of Coos Bay bentgrass which had been planted during my stay in bed was coming up to light with sprouts of healthy green. Everywhere I looked new growth and flowers were bursting forth to show their joy of existence. Even the garden had caught the consciousness of the Resurrection.

I saw the oneness of the universe. I caught the joy of the cosmic consciousness flowing blithely through everything. I saw God shining through. When my friend, the nurse, left she said, "Dear, you will never know what this month has meant to me." Our hands met. She understood.

Now I could travel through walls, enter sick bodies and make them well. When I looked at a person, I could see his organs as if my consciousness were an X-ray, and if there was a faulty place it was dark, shadowy, and murky.

When one of my neighbors came in to see me, she said her husband was in bed with a serious case of pneumonia. His mother was sitting with him. Out from my consciousness darted a streak of light. It penetrated the chest of the sick man.

Thor & Gyger

The next morning my neighbor came again to say with surprise, "My husband is up, working in the garden this morning. Isn't it amazing?" I was not surprised.

A card came stating that my mother had been hit by an automobile. That she was bruised and jarred quite badly was the extent of the account. As I read this card, out darted with terrific speed light without limit from my consciousness. It pierced the consciousness of my mother and warmed, soothed, and healed her. The next day she came to see me. Her body was black and blue, but she told me that suddenly it seemed as if a cloud had lifted from her and the shock, the pain, and soreness had left.

I learned that the light is the healer, the emancipator, the liberator. I realized that anything opposed to light is to be eschewed. A universal concept of things possessed me. My mind had expanded and bounds and boundaries had given away.

I was sitting in the sunroom, a voice clear and bell-like said to me, "You have stood the test. You have learned to rely on God. You have graduated from former ignorance and darkness. You realize the One Power in the Universe—God only.

"You are now initiated into the Order of Light which has no mysteries, no secrets, no seclusions from public view. There is no limitation as to membership. As many may belong as will stand the test—rely upon God only.

"You are on a firm foundation of knowing God. It is now your work to show others the path of light, the path of harmony, the pathway of freedom. Will you do this?"

"I will," I answered.

No more pain; no more sickness. Vibrant health manifests where disease had dwelt. Former thing had passed away; all things had been made new. □

—Edna Tradewell

Occult Principles of Health and Healing

by Max Heindel

Some of the most valuable truths about the origin, functions and proper care of man's vehicles to be found on the printed page.

Max Heindel, a trained clairvoyant, diligently investigated the real causes of physical and mental disorders in the super-physical worlds.

Reveals that man is a complex being, possessing a Dense Body, used to fetch and carry; a Vital Body, specializing energy from the Sun; a Desire Body, the emotional nature; and a Mind, the link between the threefold Spirit and threefold Body.

Postulates that disease is a manifestation of ignorance, and points the way to permanent health by giving fundamental facts necessary for intelligent, constructive living.

Please order
on page 64

"A treasure chest of valuable information."

"An indispensable addition to the libraries of all those who are concerned with the true art of healing."

New Eighth Edition. 244 pages. Indexed. Paper. Published by The Rosicrucian Fellowship.